Surflex panels offer building block assembly

Flexibility and adaptation are emphasized more than ever in fast-changing workplaces. How to meet varied requirements of different working modes of different professions becomes the hottest task. Surflex, with a building block assembly design easily redefines workstations.

Surflex Reception Station

The side panels and countertop transform a workstation into a reception & information desk.

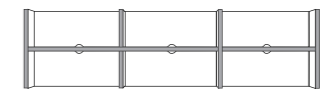

The workstation looks neat and concise, and employees can focus on their work and offer thoughtful reception to visitors.

Workstations with Storage Capacity

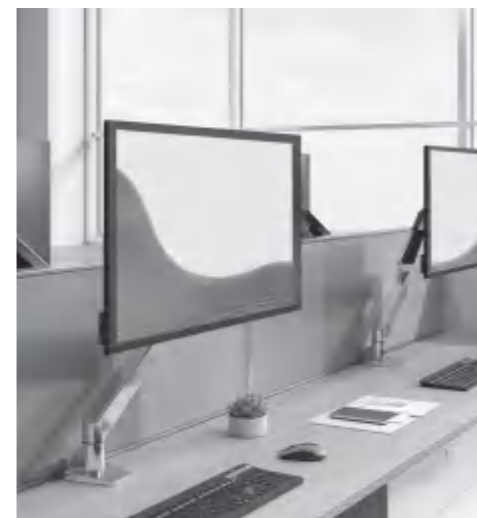

Shared Workstation Design

The high cabinet can be used for storing personal belongings like coats and bags while the pedestals for office documents. Two desks with high and low cabinets on both sides form a shared collaborative workstation.

Distinct Solution for Cooperate Expansion

One key factor to measure the flexibility of office furniture is the high adaptation to corporate expansion. Surfex born to be a good solution with easy splicing of screens and desktops. The desktop is designed with a groove on which the computer monitor stand can be mounted, humanized to meet diverse needs.

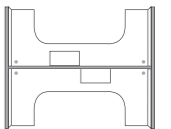

Mountable
Screens mounted on top of the panel to provide extra visual personal privacy.

Lightsome
The frosted screen is semi-transparent allowing light through while still offering privacy.

Various leg styles allow for design flexibility.

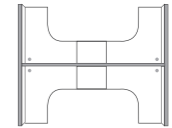

One Panel Higher, Another Level of Storage

Surflex is characterized by its high flexibility in mountable panel elements. Panels can be vertically stacked to add another level for overhead storage and make things more organized.

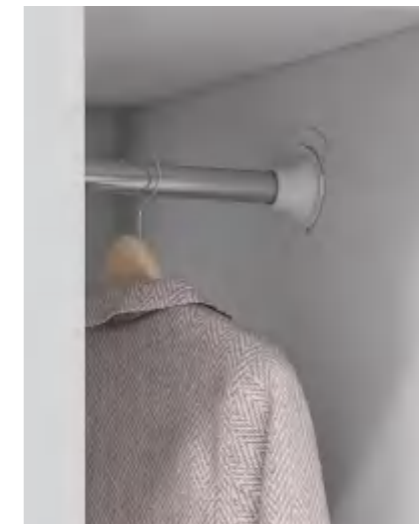

H-shaped Workstation

H-shaped Workstation with Middle Wardrobe

The wardrobe cabinet in the middle is not only for clothes storage but also provides separation between workstations and added privacy.

H-shaped Executive Space

More advantages arise when the executive breaks the private office wall and share the open space with his/her teams. Surflex executive workstation has better performance in differentiation, privacy, and noise elimination. Leaders can keep close connections to their teams while working in comfortable and considerate environment.

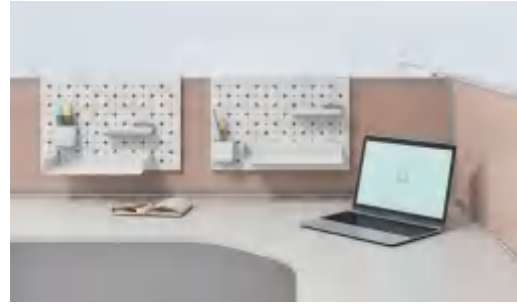

The free-standing cabinet can be used as a second desktop and additional storage.

Up-grade Storage

The screen-mounted cabinet helps create more storage.

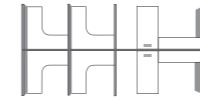

Peg boards can be mounted on the panel for organized storage to free the desktop for increased efficiency.

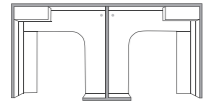

Surflex panels can be configured anywhere with power introduced from ceiling.

Combined Layouts for Individual and Team Functions

The least number of screens in this layout are spliced to form sufficient space for team individuals and the team leader, and further expansion in number is available by splicing more screens. The outward end of the curved desktop can be used for temporary discussion, making the work flow more fluent than ever.

E-shaped Workstation with Extended Privacy and Concentration
